INTRODUCTION

This second Master Index to Lingua has been prepared in accordance with the general outline of the first.

Concerning the languages in the Index of Languages, only one spelling has been included, with (if necessary) the mention of an alternative. For example, Thai and Tai are both listed under Thai. The same applies to the following differences in spelling: kh/k, c/k, u/ou, and -ic/-ian. With regard to alphabetical order, ə, ε have been considered as e; ɔ, ö as o; γ as g; ʔ has been ignored. The words 'language(s)' and 'dialect(s)' have been omitted.

INSTRUCTIONS TO AUTHORS

To facilitate the editorial work and to enhance the uniformity of presentation, authors are requested to prepare their contributions in accordance with the following conventions:

Manuscripts

The languages of publication are English, French, and German. Manuscripts should be type-written first copies with a wide margin and double space between the lines. Please use one side of the paper only. The first page should have ample space at the top around the title. All pages are to be numbered consecutively. Titles should be as short as possible; authors are requested to provide an abbreviated title not exceeding 40 characters including spaces, to be printed at the top of each right-hand page. Footnotes, references, tables, and illustrations should be presented on separate sheets.

References

Quotations in the text should be included within single quotes. References should be given by the name of the author, followed by the year of publication and the page- or section-number in brackets. For example:

'As Sapir has already noted (1921: 39) ...

'Sapir has already said: 'All grammars leak' (1921: 39).'

'... the well-known maxim 'All grammars leak' (Sapir, 1921: 39).'

A reference-list, alphabetically arranged and typed double spaced, should be added on separate sheets. Please note the following conventions: book-titles should be underlined to be printed in italics; titles of articles should be given between single quotes, followed by the name or standard abbreviation of the journal or collective volume in which it appeared, in italics. For example:

Bloomfield, L., 1933. Language. New York, Henry Holt and Co.

Halliday, M. A. K., 1961. 'Categories of the theory of grammar', Word 17, 241-92.

Sapir, E., 1929. 'The status of linguistics as a science', Lg 5, 207-14 (also in: Selected writings of Edward Sapir in language, culture and personality, Ed. David G. Mandelbaum. Berkeley and Los Angeles, Univ. of California Press, 1949, 160-6).

If several papers by the same author in the same year are cited, small a, b, etc. should be added after the year of publication. These should be made to correspond with the references in the body of the text.

Footnotes

If very few references are given, they may be included in footnotes. If references are arranged as indicated above, footnotes may be reduced to a minimum. In any case, they should be typed with double space on separate sheets, and numbered consecutively.

Illustrations

Tables, drawings, diagrams, and other illustrations should be clearly presented on separate sheets. At the appropriate place in the text, an indication must be given as to where the illustration is to be inserted: 'Fig. 1', etc.

Further conventions

Authors are asked to conform to the following rules: cited forms of the language discussed should be underlined (italic); phonetic representations ('narrow transcription') should be included in square brackets: [...]; phonemic representations ('broad transcriptions') between slant lines: /.../; glosses should be added directly after the cited form, between single quotes: '...'; reconstructed, hypothetical, or non-occurring forms should have an asterisk: *...; in the phonetic and phonemic transcription, the use of special symbols or diacritical marks should be restricted as far as possible. Please select current types wherever possible, or indicate alternatives in case of doubt.

Correction

Authors are requested to check their manuscripts most carefully as later corrections in the proof stage are expensive. Corrections by which the original text is altered will be charged.
